3 – 6 MAY 2016

HOBART TASMANIA AUSTRALIA www.highco2-iv.org

Invitation to support the 4th International Symposium on the Ocean in a High-CO₂ World

The Hobart symposium will be the fourth International Symposium on the Ocean in a High-CO₂ World - the major international symposium series on ocean acidification.

This Symposium is a gathering of the world's leading experts in a rapidly developing frontier of research dealing with the science of ocean acidification.

This is the first time the Symposium will be held in the Southern Hemisphere and will highlight the importance of ocean acidification for the region. The symposia typically attract over 500 participants and are prime networking events, bringing together researchers, students, and government and industry representatives.

Sponsors of the Symposium will be recognised for their key contribution to supporting ocean acidification research and the associated impacts on marine ecosystems, and the economic and environmental benefits it provides.
